

Dear DBCS Families,

What an exciting time this is! As we open our doors for the 2025–2026 school year, we can't help but feel energized by all the possibilities ahead of us. Walking through our hallways, we see new faces lighting up with curiosity, returning students greeting old friends, and our dedicated staff members ready to make this year extraordinary.

Our DBCS family keeps growing, and that growth brings fresh perspectives and countless opportunities for all of us to learn from one another. There's something special happening here, and we believe this year will be our best yet.

Here's what we know to be true: when families and schools work hand in hand, amazing things happen. Your child doesn't just succeed; they soar. But this kind of success requires all of us to be on the same team, pulling in the same direction.

Let's be honest - consistency matters. When we ask students to follow instructions and expectations, we need to model the same respect for one another as adults. It's not always easy, but when we trust the guidance from your child's teachers and our school team, we're showing our students what collaboration and respect look like in action. This isn't about rules for the sake of rules; it's about creating the kind of environment where every child can thrive.

We ask for your partnership in three specific ways that will make a real difference in your child's success:

Read together every single day. Thirty minutes might seem like a lot in a busy household, but this daily habit builds more than reading skills; it builds confidence, curiosity, and connection between you and your child. This can be done in the car ride to and from school.

Make homework a family priority. When you take time to review your child's work, ask questions about what they're learning, and add your signature, you're telling them their education matters to you. That message is incredibly powerful.

Support our uniform policy completely. We know morning routines can be chaotic, but when every student arrives in complete uniform, it removes distractions and helps everyone focus on what really matters - learning.

Your involvement isn't just helpful - it's transformational. Every time you read with your child, check their homework, or send them to school ready to learn, you're investing in their future and strengthening our entire school community.

Thank you for choosing DBCS and for the commitment you're making to your child's education. We genuinely appreciate each one of you, and we're looking forward to celebrating all the growth, achievements, and joy this year will bring.

Let's make this year remarkable—together.
